What a difference a year makes

Last day of winter?

Maybe, but plenty of snow left in the forecast, says Environment Canada

GRAHAM LANKTREE
graham.lanktree@metronews.ca

Despite temperatures that rose to above 25 C around this time last year, Ottawa is in for much more snow in 2013, said Environment Canada meteorologist Peter Kimbell Tuesday.

"On average we get 40 centimetres of snow in the month of March," said Kimbell, as a snowstorm blew over the city, leaving more than 10 centimetres in its wake before the first day of spring on Wednesday.

"Up until today, we had received nine centimetres. Now we're up to 22 centimetres."

At this time last year, Kimbell pointed out, the city saw a record-breaking all-time high of 27.4 C on March 21. That same week saw heat records shattered across the province.

"Statistically, we also get 11 centimetres of snow in the month of April," Kimbell said, noting that the coming month is "fairly normal in terms of temperature outlook. Every year is going to be different." Short-term weather models, he said, also show the potential for more snow next Monday.

Ottawa police reported 60 collisions since midnight Tuesday and spokesperson Const. Marc Soucy said that drivers appeared to have taken to heart police advisories to slow down on the roads after several major snowfalls led to numerous collisions.

"We're in for a quiet spell for a little while, possibly until the end of next week," said Kimbell of the snowy onslaught.

"Winter may officially be over, but it's not going to stop snowing."

'Cautiously optimistic.' Mayor keen to see more spending on infrastructure

Ottawa Mayor Jim Watson said he remains "cautiously optimistic" that the federal government will continue partnering with cities and provinces on infrastructure spending.

"I think the infrastructure program was well received both by the federal government and by the cities and provinces," Watson said on Tuesday.

"And it actually accomplished a lot of what this government is all about, and that's job creation."

A renewed infrastructure package will be key for the city, which has made the next phase of the Ottawa River cleanup a priority for spending.

But it's unlikely Watson and the Federation of Canadian Municipalities will get their wish — a $2.5-billion increase in annual infrastructure spending to $5.75 billion.

At an Economic Club of Canada luncheon earlier in the year, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty said that any decision on the future of federal infrastructure programs will be made within the context of the country's current fiscal situation.

Federal budget.
With ongoing strategic review of the public service, capital city is expected to rank 26th out of 28 cities for real GDP growth in 2013

ALEX BOULTIER

Public-service reductions and the question of continued infrastructure funding are top of mind for the City of Ottawa as Finance Minister Jim Flaherty prepares to table his 2013 budget.

Flaherty is expected to stick to the federal government's plan to eliminate a $26-billion deficit by 2015, despite an economy growing slower than forecast last year.

One component of that plan is an ongoing strategic review of the public service, always acutely felt in a region that employs around 32 per cent of the federal bureaucracy.

The ongoing fiscal restraint led the Conference Board of Canada to project modest growth of 1.3 per cent for the National Capital Region in 2013.

"We forecasted 28 cities across Canada, and in 2012 Ottawa ranked 24th (in real GDP growth) and this year we're expected to rank 26th," said Alan Arcand, chief economist with the Conference Board, on Tuesday. "So, the bottom of the rankings, really — mostly directly as a result of the budget cuts."

Arcand isn't expecting the kind of drastic cuts experienced in the mid-'90's, but said the effect of changes to the public service have a ripple effect throughout the capital region's economy — from housing starts to retail purchases.

"We haven't heard the end of this opera," said Larry Rousseau, regional executive vice-president with the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

"It ain't over. We're only in Year 1 ... and it takes time for those cuts to work their way through the system."

Another area of particular concern for the municipality is infrastructure spending. A number of interest groups — most vocal among them the Federation of Canadian Municipalities — have lobbied the federal government to continue funnelling cash into infrastructure projects.

"There will likely be something on infrastructure, (but) it's unclear what," said David Macdonald, an economist with the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives. "It's hard to see (the programs) being renewed at their full amount given the intense focus on deficits."

Depression. Guidelines aim to protect stroke victims and caregivers from tragedy

New depression-screening guidelines for stroke victims and their caregivers will help prevent tragedies such as the murder-suicide that rocked North Gower last month, said an expert Tuesday.

"It's very tragic," said Dr. Gail Eskes, an associate professor in Dalhousie University's Life Sciences Research Institute, of the deaths of Peter Thomasing and his 75-year-old father James who suffered a stroke 10 years ago. "We need to make sure that we take care of the caregivers as well."

In the early hours of Feb. 19, Peter Thomasing, 39, a trained engineer, who quit his job in Calgary to care for his father who couldn't talk or walk without assistance, turned a rifle on his dad and then himself.

Caring for the victim of a stroke, Eskes said, can impact family members to the point where they aren't "where they wanted to be in their own lifetime." Stroke doesn't happen just to the individual, she added. "It happens to the whole family."

That's why the revised Canadian Best Practice Recommendations for Stroke Care emphasizes bringing a family doctor in to monitor depression, said Eskes, who contributed to the report.

Latest findings. Carleton researchers isolate health costs of air pollution

A pair of researchers at Carleton University have attempted to put a dollar value on the health impacts of air pollution.

Engineering Prof. Amir Hakami and doctoral candidate Amanda Pappin studied air-quality models with epidemiological data to isolate the health effects of individual pollution sources.

"So we can say that the damage caused by one car in one location, how different that is from another car at a different location," said Hakami on Tuesday. "Air-quality management, reducing emissions is always a costly undertaking. So the idea is you want to get the most bang for your buck.... If you can differentiate between where the main damaging pollutants are, then you can really prioritize them and you can spend your money on reducing those emissions first."

Hakami and Pappin's complete study can be found in the Environmental Health Perspectives journal.

Natsis trial judge: Expert witness may not be expert

In court. Judge hearing drunk-driving trial questions whether cop is qualified to interpret black-box data

graham.lanktree@metronews.ca

A day after he threw out key breathalyzer evidence against a Pembroke dentist charged with drunk driving in a deadly crash, an Ottawa judge questioned whether a police accident-reconstruction expert really is an expert.

"There is, I think, a distinction between a 'technical accident investigator' and 'accident-reconstruction specialist,'" Judge Neil Kozloff told Crown prosecutor John Ramsay, in regards to OPP Const. Shawn Kelly's analysis of the accident scene and a "black-box" module from within the two cars. "It may be that he's an expert in some areas, but not all the areas in which you have asked me to find him so."

Kozloff said that initially Crown prosecutors offered Kelly as an "accident reconstructionist," but that documents refer to him as a "technical accident investigator." As a technical accident investigator Kelly is able to offer evidence with regard to speed and distance calculations as well as motor-vehicle debris fields and gouges and scrapes on the road, the judge said.

At issue is whether he can accurately interpret data from the "power control module." The black-box-like devices gathered from both cars recorded speed, steering, and brake-and gas-pedal use leading up to the crash that killed 50-year-old Ottawa, Bryan Casey, in March 2011.

Pembroke dentist Dr. Christy Natsis has pleaded not guilty to impaired driving causing death, dangerous driving and having over 80 milligrams of alcohol in her bloodstream.

"I'm concerned about some evidence that is going to address the legitimate interpretation of the data derived from the module," Kozloff said, adding he needed time to mull the issue before continuing the case Wednesday. "That is not within Kelly's area of expertise."

Magnotta falls in courtroom

Hearing postponed.
Alleged killer collapses after seeing disturbing evidence on video

MIKE McLAUGHLIN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Luka Rocco Magnotta collapsed to the courtroom floor after seeing video evidence presented against him, forcing a postponement in his preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Magnotta appeared distraught as the video played. When it was over, the suspect in a killing-and-dismemberment case asked for a break. He stood up and fell on his right side, crumpling into a fetal position at the feet of a guard.

The evidence in the gruesome case is subject to a publication ban. It could be made public if the case goes to trial.

Magnotta was not back in court when the afternoon session began at 2 p.m.

"He really doesn't feel well and he's not able to continue," his lawyer, Luc Leclair, said.

Judge Lori-Renee Weitzman said they could not continue without Magnotta present. She ordered the case suspended until Wednesday.

During the proceedings, Magnotta had held his hand over his mouth, as if he felt ill. The 30-year-old appeared to wipe away tears several times.

Even the judge appeared to be affected by the evidence. She winced slightly at one point in the video. Some police investigators present looked away.

Luka Magnotta is charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Jun Lin, a 33-year-old Concordia University student from China. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cyprus votes down levy on bank deposits

EU financial crisis.

While protesters cheer move by Parliament, international bailout is now left in disarray

Cypriot lawmakers have rejected a critical draft bill that would have seized part of people's bank deposits in order to qualify for a vital international bailout.

The bill, which had been amended Tuesday morning to shield small-deposit holders from the deposit tax, was rejected with 36 votes against, 19 abstentions and zero votes in favour. One deputy was absent.

Hundreds of protesters outside Parliament cheered in jubilation and sang the national anthem when they heard the bill had not passed. Cyprus will now have to come up with an alternative plan to raise the money.

If it doesn't, it won't qualify for external rescue loans, the country's banks face collapse and the country could go bankrupt.

The plan to seize bank deposits was part of a larger bailout package being negotiated with other European countries. It was met with fury in Cyprus and sent jitters across financial markets. Had the bill passed, banks in Cyprus had planned to stay shut until Thursday to prevent a bank run.

Although Cyprus is the smallest eurozone country to be bailed out, the proposal marked the first time savers' bank accounts were to be directly targeted. Other bailed-out countries such as Greece, Ireland and Portugal have raised funds by imposing new taxes.

Sheer oversight. Lululemon recalling black pants that reveal too much yoga butt

Shares in Lululemon Athletica Inc. closed down $1.76 to $65.74 on the Toronto Stock Exchange Tuesday, after the clothing maker recalled some of its black yoga pants because they were too see-through and warned the move would hurt sales.

RBC Capital Markets analyst Howard Tubin noted it was the second product-related issue the company has had this year.

"Combine this with the problems they had with red and pink garments earlier this year and bears could start to weave a narrative that Lululemon is consistently encountering execution issues while growing," Tubin wrote in a note to investors, referring to problems with bleeding in some of Lululemon's coloured clothing.

The retailer pulled its popular black Luon yoga pants from store shelves because the material used to make them was too sheer, showing off too much of their customers' assets.

Low-cost laptops

Google brings Chromebook to Canada

Google is continuing its march into the hardware business with a brand of cheap laptops designed for using the web — and not much else. On Tuesday, the Internet giant announced its Chromebook concept was finally available in Canada, more than a year after being released in the U.S. and other countries.

Chromebooks look like standard laptops but don't come loaded with a version of Windows or a Mac operating system. They run on Google's Chrome OS, a streamlined platform with the web browser as the main attraction.

They're being pushed as a low-cost device — they start at about $250 — for users who spend most of their time on a computer using the Internet, and therefore don't need the processing power to run full-blown software applications. While Chromebooks can access mobile networks in the U.S., that feature is not available in Canada, so users are limited to working with Wi-Fi.

There's a web store with a selection of simple programs and games to access, and more robust web-based applications — such as the Google Docs suite to create documents and spreadsheets — run smoothly within the Chrome browser and store files online.

THUMBS DOWN — STOP TEXTING

I think we're texting ourselves to death.

I was reading a story by a relationship therapist who claimed that Canadians text eight billion messages a month.

The point was something like: "How can anyone have a relationship when there's all that texting going on?"

That seemed like a lot to me, so I went to the Internet and did some research. No matter how you slice it, the guy's right. We do a terrific — or is that terrible — amount of texting.

According to one source, we send 227 million text messages a day or 10 million an hour. Another says Canadians send 2,500 messages a second for a total of 78 billion a year. While we're throwing around numbers, that comes to about 10 a day per subscriber.

In the U.S., according to the Pew Internet & American

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Life Project, the average user sends 40 messages a day, but young Americans 18-24 send or receive 109.5 messages a day.

It's easy to conclude we're all thumbs.

These numbers correspond to my anecdotal survey: nine times out of 10, wherever I go, everyone else is looking down. I'm the only one looking up.

I've tried to pretend to look down and be like everyone else, but my heart's not really in it. I have to admit I'm tired of texting, tired of tweeting, tired of email, tired of not talking to other people.

Other people are actually pretty interesting, but only if you can get them while they're not texting. They're also not very interesting if their fingers creep toward their smartphone (41 per cent of Canadians say they keep their cellphone in reach at all times), nor are they interesting when they try to talk to you and text at the same time (18 per cent; at least they're trying).

It starts to get interesting when they try to drive and text at the same time, but not in a good way. An editor at Car and Driver found that it took longer to stop when he was texting than when he was legally drunk — an extra 70 feet, which is enough to drive you straight into the nearest tree.

So here I am texting you, and here you are reading this text. Whoops.

I hope you find this text interesting. I hope it encourages you to put away your smartphone and look up.

Perhaps you're not driving into the back end of the car in front of you at this very moment. Bonus. That means it's not too late to put the phone away and start relating to other people, like your spouse, parents, friends, colleagues, perfect strangers. It doesn't matter. They've been so busy texting, none of them will recognize you anyway.

Start small. Smile. Remember? That's something you do with your face, not your thumbs.

Hole-y, what a church

Empty building a sign of the times

A see-through church stands on a hilltop in Borgloon, 80 kilometres east of Brussels, Belgium.

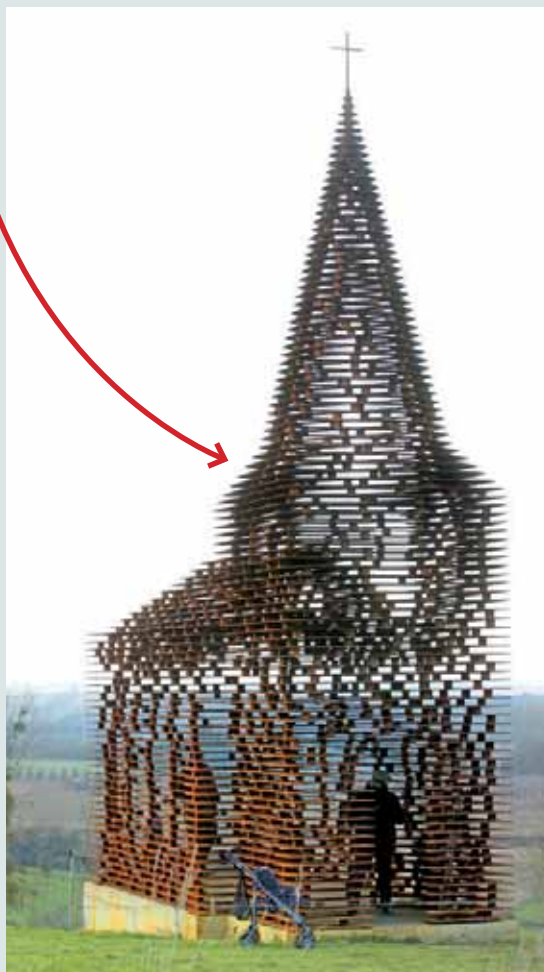

The artistic vision of the church is made of rusty steel beams separated by gaps, and its austere beauty won it an international architecture prize. Yet the eerie desolation of the see-through installation has also turned into a reflection on the state of Roman Catholicism on a religion-weary continent where real churches, like the dozen dotting the hills of this verdant area, increasingly lose their flock and function.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Interest across Europe crumbles like a wafer

Across large swaths of Europe, empty pews and empty pulpits are the stark reality of centuries-old churches in a continent where, not so long ago, the village spire was the main point of reference for society.

Pope Francis faces a daunting array of challenges, and one of them is bringing souls back to the historic heartland of the Catholic Church. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

YVES LOGGHE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For example

- For signs of this decline, look no further than Paris, at the famed Notre Dame Cathedral.
- On Pope Francis' installation day, thousands of tourists easily outnumbered less than 200 worshippers in the pews, even as the ceremony on St. Peter's Square was televised inside.
- Many churches have been turned into restaurants and shops, or even demolished, often given a new function in society never intended by those who originally built them.

Lean structure wins award

This disappearing act gave Pieterjan Gijs, of the Gijs Van Varenbergh architecture firm, ideas.

The Borgloon art installation's layered structure allows visitors to see right through it, and this evanescence gives it a double layer of beauty and philosophical depth. It won the 2012 prize for best religious building by the website Arch Daily. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fey's decade of comic clout

New movie. From SNL to a best-selling book to hit movies and a sitcom, the female comedian continues to break new ground

Tina Fey regularly appears on the Forbes' annual Celebrity 100 list of the most powerful celebrities. She's made the Entertainment Weekly roll call of Entertainers of the Year and Time called her one of the most influential people in the world. Did I mention she's also really funny?

For nine years on Saturday Night Live she worked behind the scenes — as the show's first female head writer — and on camera as the anchor of Weekend Update.

"She might be the best Weekend Update anchor who ever did it," said Dennis Miller. "She writes the funniest jokes"

Then came 30 Rock, the medium-rated but critically adored sitcom, a best selling book and a celebrated impersonation of Sarah Palin that even got the thumbs up from the ex-Governor.

This weekend she's on the big screen in Admission, a comedy co-starring Paul Rudd. She plays a Princeton admissions officer who thinks one of her new recruits is the son she gave up for adoption years ago.

Fey made her film debut a decade ago in the quirky comedy Martin & Orloff as part of an ensemble cast that included SNLers Amy Poehler and Rachel Dratch.

That movie didn't garner much attention, and her role of Southern Woman even less, but in 2004 she shortened the unwieldy title Queen Bees and Wannabes: Helping Your Daughters Survive Cliques, Gossip, Boyfriends, and Other Realities of Adolescence to Mean Girls. The story of high school in-groups was a hit and launched the careers of Rachel McAdams and Talking about Tina Fey.

Amanda Seyfried.

She co-starred in Mean Girls as math teacher Ms. Norbury and made on-screen appearances as Front Desk Girl in Beer League but got her name over the title in Baby Mama.

She played Kate, a single 37-year-old businesswoman so desperate to have a baby she hires Angie, an inappropriate South Philly wild child (Amy Poehler) to be her surrogate.

Next was the stranded-in-big-bad-New-York-City movie Date Night opposite Steve Carell.

The movie wouldn't be as enjoyable as it is without the two leads. Fey and Carell breathe life into a hackneyed situation, bringing not only likeability, but also great chemistry and a way with a line that really works.

In the animated Megamind she voiced intrepid girl reporter Roxanne Ritchi, kidnapped by the master of all villainy Megamind (voice of Will Ferrell) and next year she stars with Ricky Gervais in The Muppets ... again.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Who is the father of Michael Jackson's children?

Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

For years, I've gazed upon the children of Michael Jackson and wondered: "Are they really his kids?" What trips me up is that they kind of look like him, but only after he underwent his radical plastic surgery.

But then I remember that if he were still alive and "un-adulterated," Jackson should look a lot more like Tito and a lot less like LaToya. I guess what I'm trying to clumsily say is that even with a white mother, Blanket, Paris and Prince should look more like a young Michael and a lot less like the crypt keeper he became. Also, holy cats: What a crazy family.

Anyway, it's looking more and more like MJ is not the father of his children (I knew it! Kind of!). According to TMZ, in their nasty wrongful death lawsuit against AEG Live (Katharine Jackson and Blanket, Paris and Prince are suing the entertainment giant for $40 billion for the negligent hiring and supervision of Dr. Conrad Murray during preparation for Jackson's This Is It tour), his family is asking to exclude any evidence of the true paternity of Jackson's children.

I'm unsure why the paternity would be entered into evidence — I'm far from a legal scholar — but the fact the Jackson family is trying to block this is telling.

Also, if the Jacksons do prevail against AEG, I hope they use some of those billions for therapy for those poor kids. Because even the best therapist in the land (Dr. Phil, duh) cannot go there.

Is Albuquerque's tourism industry Breaking Bad?

Drug-induced dilemma. New Mexico city is profiting from visitors scoping out sites from hit TV series, but is it a rep they want to promote?

A fast-food burrito chain in Albuquerque has become an international tourist attraction as people come from all over the world to see the spot where a fictional drug trafficker runs his organization. A pastry shop sells doughnuts topped with blue candy designed to resemble crystal meth. A beauty store has a similar product — crystal blue bathing salts.

As Breaking Bad finishes filming its fifth and final season in Albuquerque, the popularity of the show is providing a boost to the economy and creating a dilemma for local tourism officials as they walk the fine line of profiting from a show that centres around drug trafficking, addiction and violence. Breaking Bad follows the fictional character Walter White, a high school chemistry teacher turned meth lord.

Albuquerque has seen an unexpected jump in tourists visiting popular sites from the show and local businesses cashing in on its popularity. Tourists are also flocking to sites that before the show were unknown and unimportant — the suburban home of White, played by Bryan Cranston, a car wash that is a front for a money-laundering operation on the series, a rundown motel used frequently for filming and the real-life burrito joint, which is a fast food chicken restaurant on the show. The Albuquerque Convention & Visitors Bureau has even created a website of the show's most popular places around town to help tourists navigate, and ABQ Trolley Company sold out all its "BaD" tours last year at $60 a ticket.

"They ask if they can take pictures. They ask if Gus is here," said Rachel Johnson, 19, a shift manager at the Twisters burrito restaurant in Albuquerque's South Valley, referring to the show's character Gus Fring, played by actor Giancarlo Esposito. The eatery has served as the location for the Los Pollos Hermanos restaurant where Fring runs his drug operation.

Tourism officials and business owners are quick to point out that they are walking a fine line in trying not to promote the dark themes from Breaking Bad. But their pride in the show taking place in Albuquerque — and the money that it brings in — is often enough to offset their concerns.

There are probably more free things to do in the U.S. capital than nearly any other major city in the world. The most popular museums and the zoo are free, as well as the picturesque memorials and monuments. With so many free options, the biggest challenge might be narrowing down what to see.

PHOTOS AND STORY: THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Smithsonian Institute

No visit to the U.S. capital is complete without a visit to the nation's museums. First-time visitors learn fast that a trip to the Smithsonian is not a visit to one place. There are actually 19 different museums that are part of the Smithsonian, along with the National Zoo. Most line the National Mall. Some must-see exhibits: The Apollo 11 capsule that carried the first men to land on the moon, President Abraham Lincoln's top hat and Dorothy's "ruby slippers" from The Wizard of Oz, and the large Hope Diamond.

free things in Washington D.C.

National Mall

The nearly four kilometre grassy expanse between the Capitol and Potomac River features memorials honouring five presidents, including George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln, as well as Martin Luther King Jr. and battle monuments in tribute to America's veterans. One of the best times to visit is in the evening, as the monuments are lit and crowds have dwindled. Beyond the large monuments, there are dozens of smaller statues, historic sites and walking paths along the mall. The park also draws about one million people each year to see its famous cherry blossom trees when they reach full bloom in late March or early April.

Behind the scenes

Washington is a city where everyone wants special access and a look behind the scenes of power. One of the best ways is to plan ahead. Call your member of Congress to request a personal tour led by a congressional staffer. Visitors can also ask for a tour of the Capitol dome. White House tours are also normally available through congressional offices, though they have been halted temporarily to government budget cuts. International visitors can request tickets through their country's embassy. If you don't have time for reservations, the Capitol Visitor Center offers free exhibits and tours of the Capitol. Tickets are available online. A limited number of same-day passes also are distributed at the information desks each day. The centre also offers specialty tours on the Capitol's history and artwork.

Presidential sites

A walk through downtown Washington offers a chance to connect with presidential history. A short walk from the White House, Ford's Theatre, where President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, offers daily tours with free same-day tickets distributed each morning at 8:30 a.m. Otherwise, advance tickets are $2.50 per person. Walk five minutes further from the theatre and visitors will find the National Portrait Gallery. Its most popular collection is the presidential portraits, including some of the most famous images of George Washington and Abe Lincoln.

Waterfront and Kennedy Center

Washington is increasingly embracing its waterfronts that were once neglected. New gardens and walking paths are bringing new life to these spaces. In Georgetown, a new park along the Potomac River has become a popular place to relax. Take a stroll along the water. Bring a picnic or stop for a late lunch at a riverside café. Then head toward the Kennedy Center along the river. This living memorial to President John F. Kennedy offers free tours with no reservations required. Arrive in time for the 4:30 p.m. tour of the theatres and concert halls. Then stay for a free Millennium Stage performance every day at 6 p.m.

Spring into healthy eating habits with Greek Yogurt Chicken Salad

While I am all for deli-style chicken salad sandwiches on thick slices of white bread, sometimes the part of my brain that reminds me I need to be eating a little bit healthier pipes up and insists that some dishes can be made with health in mind.

It turns out, this recipe for Greek Yogurt Chicken Salad is as yummy as the original and can be made even healthier by using it in Chicken Salad Lettuce Wraps.

I also have to admit that I'll eat this stuff out of a bowl on its own, over rice or spread on toast. It's that yummy!

1. In a bowl, add chicken, celery, cucumber and cilantro.
2. Mix in Greek yogurt, Dijon mustard, and avocado until combined.

3. Place equal amounts of cabbage onto each lettuce leaf and top with chicken salad. Roll and enjoy!

To annoy is to destroy.

Five easy ways to upsell at your retail job without being pushy

PELLEGRINI
TalentEgg.ca

You've probably dealt with pushy retail salespeople before.

The ones who make you feel uncomfortable because they keep asking you to buy stuff even though you've said you're not interested more than once.

You know what I'm talking about, right? Perfect, you know how it feels and you know that it usually sends people searching for the nearest exit.

So, if you work in retail, don't be anything like that.

The challenge is that store management expects you to sell more products, maintain certain performance metrics and put more cash into the store's till. You can do this without begging customers to buy and spend more by offering them related products or services.

The guy taking your order at the drive-thru does this all the time by asking you if you'd like fries with your hamburger. Most of the time you say no. But sometimes, you say yes. That's how you get people to buy and spend more. It's called upselling.

Effective upselling requires patience, detailed observation, resilience and some skill.

Get a few more dollars out of your customers by following these five upselling tips:

Get them talking

People love talking about themselves. In my experi-

The pathway you take to the checkout counter can present upselling opportunities too. If you're helping someone with frames, for example, show them to the hardware aisle before they leave the store. ISTOCK ence, the better the conversation, the longer a customer stays in the store, the more they tend to spend and the greater the chance they'll become a repeat customer.

Conversation helps build a relationship, showcases your product knowledge and makes the customer feel like you're their friend instead of a salesperson. How, though?

Ask open-ended questions

Get your customers talking by asking them open-ended questions. You don't want their response to be "yes" or "no" because you can't learn anything about them, how they plan to use the product or how much they're able to spend.

This process will reveal products or services that the customers didn't intend to buy.

If you're selling athletic footwear, for example, try asking questions like:

- What are you planning to use your shoes for?
- How much are you willing to spend?
- Tell me about your current pair of running shoes.

Suggest products your customers need

The answers to your open-ended questions will help you suggest products the customer might need to solve a problem they expressed during your conversation. If you're suggesting a more expensive product than the one they came to the store to purchase, always explain its features, benefits and why this product is better suited

Happy ending

Close the sale the way you started it

Remember how bubbly and friendly you were when the customer walked into the store? Act the same way throughout the entire transaction, tell them your name and don't forget to thank them for shopping at your store before they leave.

to fulfil their needs.

Not every upselling story has a happy ending.

How you handle rejection can send a message to the customer about how genuine your recommendations really were.

Part-time shine. All those hours have added up to some exceptional experience

TalentEgg.ca

If you ever feel like your part-time retail experience won't impress a potential employer, you're probably not emphasizing the skills you strengthened, your sales achievements or what you learned about running a business successfully on your resumé.

If you're hoping for a full-time career in retail on the sales floor or at a retailer's head office, your part-time experience is extremely valuable.

Here's how you can communicate what you did at these jobs on your resumé:

Quantify your sales performance

Retail is a results-oriented business. While the numbers don't tell an entire story, they don't lie either. Retailers are looking to see what and how you will contribute to their sales team and so numbers help prove your skills.

If you excelled in a previous role, be sure to be specific about what you achieved and when you achieved it. You should include important performance metrics like total sales, average sale and items per sale within a certain time period (either quarterly or yearly).

Include the benchmark for each metric

How can a hiring manager compare how you performed to how you were supposed to perform if you only tell them what you did? They won't know how impressive your metric figures are unless they're in the same industry. Add context to your achievements by includ-

List any leadership roles

Were you responsible for training new hires? Did you lead a number of sales associates during peak times? Were you in charge of closing or opening the store? Were you a member of the store's health and safety committee?

- If you were, it probably means that management trusted your abilities and judgement to meet company standards, lead a team and resolve any problems that may arise. If you were called to perform tasks that made you a leader in your store, include the most notable ones on your resumé.

ing the store's benchmark or minimum requirements for each performance metric. This will prove that you really did excel in your role in relation to your colleagues.

This means you'll have to keep track of your performance (take photocopies, print out sales reports and relevant emails, and take pictures of significant sales receipts or merchandising lay-outs you worked on).

Display your commitment to learning

The top sellers tend to be the people with the most knowledge about products. If you attended any optional or mandatory product knowledge seminars during your employment, be sure to list how many and any key, transferable highlights from them. It signals to a potential employer that you take retail seriously, you're open to learning new things and that you're able to adapt to new situations.

Bring your selling skills to your dream job

A position that pays.

Expect to gain plenty of transferable skills with your job in customer service

LEAH RUEHLICKE
TalentEgg.ca

The idea of working retail is perhaps not the most appealing thing. You don't (or at least rarely) get the luxury of a set schedule. The customer is always right (even when they aren't). You spend the majority of your shift cleaning up messes made by other people. You have to refold the same sweater 27 times a day.

However, working retail does allow you to gain some transferable skills that are valuable in any industry. Regardless of whether you are pursuing your passion for numbers and aiming for an accounting degree or planning to explore the healthcare industry as a registered nurse, your time spent be-

Handle it!

Ability to problem solve and think on your feet

- If you're working on commission, you've got to sell — meaning you better learn how to handle that customer who says she's "just looking".
- Coming up with creative ways to make sales and converse with customers is going to impress any future employer — and in the meantime, maybe even make you that commission.

hind the counter at a retail store might prove to be more beneficial than you realized.

Take a look at how those classic points that employers seek on resumés can be supported by your time working the kiosk in the mall.

Excellent interpersonal skills

First and foremost, working in the customer service industry gives you the chance to spend your entire day communicating with people. You learn to be helpful but genuine. Friendly, yet efficient. You also get the chance to work with diverse groups of people, allowing you to experience and deal with a mixture of personality types.

Effective time-management skills

Your Monday 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. shift is followed by Tuesday's 12:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. and Wednesday's 5 p.m. to close.

A flexible schedule forces you to learn how to utilize your time to get everything done. Perhaps you are on the prowl for a more permanent position, or are still trying to fit your badminton games in three times a week. Working a job with ever-changing hours forces you to be on top of things.

Ability to stay calm in stressful situations

You're behind the cash. The line is halfway through the store and you are ringing through a young man's purchase while someone else is wagging damaged items under your nose. Every industry is going to throw situations at you which require you to multitask. Fast. Having this previous experience can only help.

World women's curling championship. Canadians in fourth place after winning one and losing one for second straight day

Canada's Rachel Homan split her games for the second straight day at the world women's curling championship, dropping an 8-4 decision to Sweden on Tuesday night after edging Italy 7-6 earlier in the day in Riga, Latvia.

Sweden's Margaretha Sigfridsson got around a guard with her final throw and Canadian skip Rachel Homan was pleased with her rink's performance but not the result that came with it knocked Homan's stone from the four-foot ring for the win.

"It was very frustrating to lose that one because we definitely outplayed them," Homan said. "But that happens sometimes, that's curling. You just move on and take the good from that game and keep doing it."

Homan has a 4-3 record after 11 draws, good for a share of fourth place in the round-robin standings. Sigfridsson and Scotland's Eve Muirhead share first place at 6-1 and Russia's Anna Sidorova is third at 5-2.

The United States, Switzerland and Japan are tied with Canada at 4-3. The top four rinks in the 12-team field will make the playoffs.

Round-robin play continues through Thursday night.

Despite the loss, Homan and her coach were quite satisfied with the effort against the 2012 silver medalists. The 23-year-old Ottawa skip felt the Canadians took a step forward Tuesday and felt more settled on the ice.

"If we keep playing like that, we'll be fine the rest of the way," Homan said.

In the afternoon session, Homan hit a draw with her final throw for a win over Italy.

"It was a great last judge by my front end and a great team end," she said. "We made eight shots that end, so it was good."

Canada will play Germany and Switzerland on Wednesday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Yawn.

That's what a 23-game winning streak will do.

It mutes the LeBron Goes Home Again hype.

But after gutting out a win in Boston on Monday night and what lies ahead, it may no longer be farfetched to think that the record of 33 straight victories set by the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers is within Miami's grasp.

"It means a lot," James said after the Boston game. "I know the history of the game. To be sitting in second place right now ... for us to be there and doing it in the way we want to do it, it means a lot."

Jarome Iginla

The Calgary captain has moved to the top of the list. Flames GM Jay Feaster absolutely needs to trade him to start the rebuilding process. Any deal has to include a first-round pick and a top prospect. Iginla appears ready to move but he has a say in where he'll go. Look for Pittsburgh and Los Angeles to make pitches.

Martin St. Louis

If Steve Yzerman decides it's time to deal him, then St. Louis might move past Iginla as the most sought-after player. Tampa looks like they'll be on the sidelines. St. Louis is 37 but he's still a premier playmaker, with 30 assists to go along with his seven goals. He needs to OK any trade, and Stevie Y will certainly want some talented youth in return.

David Clarkson

Hard to see Devils GM Lou Lamoriello trading Clarkson, 28, with New Jersey still in the playoff picture. He'll be an unrestricted free agent this summer, so if you're going to give up a draft pick to get him, you'd better be sure you can sign him. It will take more than his current $2.6-million salary. He scored 30 last season and has 11 in 29 this year.

Marian Gaborik

The New York Rangers apparently are trying to deal him and there's a match if a team can give them a top four defenceman. But he's got a no-trade clause and likes playing and living in Manhattan.

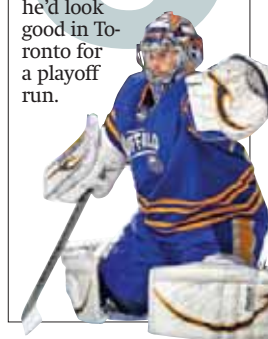

Robert Luongo

It's getting to the point where the Vancouver Canucks might need both of their goalies to even make the playoffs, never mind do some damage in the post-season. Once a lock to be dealt, it now seems more likely a deal will happen in the summer unless Mike Gillis is really desperate for a second-line centre.

Ryan Miller

If there is to be a house cleaning in Buffalo, Miller could fetch some young talent. He can win games on his own when he's motivated. He's spent a career beating the Leafs and he'd look good in Toronto for a playoff run.

2014 Kia Forte

- Type. Four-door, front-wheel-drive compact sedan
- Engine (hp): 1.8-litre DOHC I4 (148); 2.0-litre DOHC I4 (173)
- Transmissions. Six-speed manual (1.8); six-speed automatic (optional on 1.8, standard on 2.0)
- Base price (including destination). $17,500 (estimated)

Design

The Forte's looks for 2014 have been dramatically changed from play-it-safe conservative to fashionably sophisticated. The car contains elements of the Elantra, particularly above the beltline with its dramatically sloping windshield, while the distinctive familial "tiger nose" provides an important point of differentiation. Overall length has increased by about 2.5 centimetres, while the distance between the front and rear wheels has been extended by five centimetres. That stretch pays off in added legroom for front and rear passengers, but a lower roofline means there's a bit less total passenger volume than before.

Good design can't be translated unless the quality and materials are first rate. Kia brings that along in lockstep.

Engine

Also dialed back somewhat is the Forte's power. The new base 1.8-litre engine (also shared with the Elantra) pumps out 148 horsepower and 131 pound-feet of torque, compared with 156 horsepower and 144 pound-feet for the previous base 2.0-litre. The now-optional 2.0-litre four-cylinder (that surprisingly is not on the Elantra sedan's menu) produces 173 horsepower and 154 pound-feet of torque.

Fuel economy

Official fuel-economy stats (a touchy subject for Hyundai/Kia lately, given its recent recanting of fuel economy claims on certain models) have yet to be released, but the numbers for the base 1.8 should be in the 7.0-l/100-km range in the city and about 5.0-5.5 on the highway.

MALCOLM GUNN
wheelbasemedia.com

Despite being an all-new model for 2010, the Kia Forte never really caught on in a big way. When you look at the numbers now, it really has nowhere to go but up, and with this redesign, that's where this compact is headed.

The new Forte that launches this spring bears the unmistakable influence of design chief Peter Schreyer. For the past six years, the former Audi stylist has been largely responsible for the style of Kia's fleet, as well as those built by its Hyundai parent. With Schreyer's assistance, Hyundai Elantra sales have more than doubled since the 2008 model year, while the Forte, which trails by a considerable margin, has experienced a more modest advance since arriving for 2010. The Forte's platform is shared with the Elantra.

A six-speed manual transmission comes with the 1.8, while a six-speed automatic is optional but standard with the 2.0 along with Kia's "Idle Stop & Go." This piece of new fuel-saving tech shuts off the engine when the Forte is stopped in traffic, then restarts it when the brake pedal is released.

Spending time aboard the Forte will prove comforting for passengers and especially pleasing for the driver who faces an intuitively laid-out dashboard and control panel.

He or she also has command over the level of steering effort with the Forte's optional Flex Steer system. With it, the electric power steering can be adjusted to comfort, normal and sport settings, with the latter offering the least amount of assist.

Of the Forte's two trim levels, the starting-point LX leans to the simpler side of the ledger with its smaller engine, 15-inch steel wheels, basic audio system and the lack of cruise control or a keyless-remote-entry button on the fob.

Move up to the EX and it's a different story. Along with adding the LX's missing items, you can count on dual-zone climate control, a Microsoft-powered infotainment system, backup camera, glove-box cooler and 16-inch alloy wheels. Oh, and the optional 2.0-litre four-cylinder is also an EX staple.

But it's the lengthy option list that can turn the EX into a junior-sized luxury sedan.

No need for flannel with Forester's new technology

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Some technological shifts take place over decades. Others take longer. We're still waiting, for example, for banking institutions to take less than five business days to clear a local cheque, even though they collectively possess more data transfer technology than the team of international engineers working on the World Space Station.

But let's talk about a technological shift that's more fun — how vehicle off-road technology is evolving from hardware to software.

Before computers crept into vehicles, if you wanted to go up a rugged hill with a 35-degree slope, you needed a squarish Jeep or Land Rover complete with locking differentials and hubs, a set of lower gears, a transfer case to select 4x4 and those lower gears, stiffer and bigger springs, skids plates, and tires so knobby that ground squirrels could live in their grooves for weeks. All

Why is our correspondent driving the 2014 Subaru Forester with two wheels on a roller? Apparently, "it's fun." It was also Subaru's way of showing how cleverly the Forester's AWD system could carry on when both wheels on one side of the vehicle were completely traction deprived. CONTRIBUTED manly and beefy stuff.

And the driving itself was equally rugged. Levers had to be pulled with some force. Braking, steering, shifting and gas pedalling all needed to be ratcheted up several notches over normal "on-pavement" standards.

You might step into an off-road vehicle like a highly evolved man or woman, but once fully 4x4 engaged, you would start grunting instead of using your words, shirt material would magically turn to flannel and your shut-down chainsaw would intermittently murmur in anticipation.

But no such transformation took place last week when we had an opportunity to try out the all-new 2014 Subaru Forester and its new-fangled off-road system. To keep Forester as one of the more capable off-roaders in its segment, Subaru updated its AWD system, but not so much with anything meaty and metal — more by making it smarter, through software.

Unlike the previous system, this AWD system talks to the steering wheel, the yaw rate sensor (how the vehicle rotates on its centre axis), and a device that measures transverse acceleration (I only wish I knew how to explain that).

Also new is X-Mode. Hit the X-mode switch on the console and Forester is transformed into a slow-speed off-road rock star (only works under 40 km/hr).

Some of the things it does: makes the throttle easier to feed in small amounts of power when going uphill; makes the throttle easier to more quickly feed in power when traversing rough roads and keeps a lower gear longer with no torque converter lock-up.

Because the VDC system is already capable of applying brakes and throttle to keep a vehicle from spinning out of control, Subaru uses the functions to give us X-Mode's "Hill Descent" feature. Just point the vehicle down a steep hill and keep your feet off the brakes and throttle. The system automatically brakes and maintains the appropriate speed.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

As of today, all the pieces of your jigsaw that failed to fit will at last fall into place. You will know who you are, what you want and that surely you will get it.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You seem to feel guilty about something and with the Sun moving into the most sensitive area of your chart today, it could all get a bit much for you. Get a grip!

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Don't leave people guessing today. Tell them exactly what you mean. Over the next few weeks, you will find it easy to win friends and influence people. So, speak up and when necessary, speak loudly.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You can and you must pursue your own ambitions, whatever they might be. According to the planets, this is a make or break time as far as your reputation is concerned. Be positive and be ready to move up.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You may find yourself called upon to help someone in need today and, of course, you will assist in any way you can. However, do not — repeat, not — lend them money because chances are you won't see it again.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

If you have fallen out with a friend or family member now is the time to kiss and make up. But make sure any apology you make sounds sincere or you could find yourself in deeper water than before.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Your needs must come first. As the Sun moves into your opposite sign today so partners and colleagues will expect you to do everything for them. Put your foot down right from the start, on their toes if necessary!

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Don't leave anything to chance: Stay on top of work and money matters and make sure you are the only one who can make things happen. If you let others make decisions for you, they may take your power.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

There is excitement in the air. You know that something wonderful is going to happen. And so it is, but don't be too disappointed if it is not quite as wonderful as you expected. It will get better as time goes on.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

There are days when all you want to do is watch the world go by from the safety of your armchair, and this is one of them. Not even a Capricorn can be a mover and shaker all the time.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Your mind may be full of good ideas but how many of them will see the light of day? Too often in the past you have failed to follow up on your insights, but now you must. It's your turn to shine.

Pisces

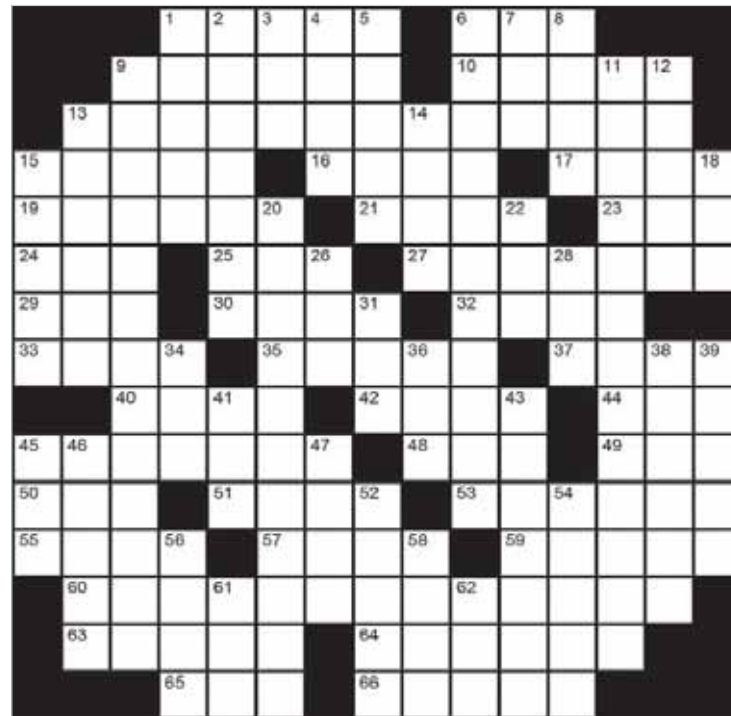

Feb. 20 - March 20

The Sun may be leaving your sign but that does not mean the good times are ending. On the contrary, you will soon enjoy rewards of the efforts you made in recent weeks. SALLY BROMPTON
